

Department Overview

The City of Holland's Volunteer Services Department is responsible for oversight of all City volunteer. It serves as a liaison between City departments and the citizens who wish to be involved in various aspects of the City on a volunteer basis. The department manages the advisory boards and commissions system as well as provides assistance to departments in regards to special events and projects that utilize volunteers. The department also maintains records of volunteers, their placement, and hours worked in order to provide periodic reports to City Council.

The Mayor, Council Members and staff of the City of Holland are indebted to the thousands of volunteers involved in hundreds of projects, events, boards, and commissions who help make Holland a great place to live, work and play.

Source URL (retrieved on 2015-01-28 23:39):

<http://www.cityofholland.com/volunteerservices/department-overview>