City of Holland Recognized for Environmental Leadership

Holland, MI – The City of Holland was recognized for its environmental leadership by the statewide Michigan Green Communities (MGC) program. As part of the annual Michigan Green Communities (MGC) Challenge, local governments are awarded bronze, silver, gold or platinum seals of achievement. These achievements reflect community leadership in areas such as energy efficiency, climate adaptation and resilience, recycling, environmental justice and more.

The City of Holland achieved gold status for exemplary action in multiple categories, including planning, energy efficiency, renewable energy, recycling, transportation, and community engagement. Over this past year, the City has made significant strides in these areas, especially in community energy efficiency, rebates, and the elective renewable rate program. The Home Energy 101 and Holland Board of Public Works (HBPW) Rebate programs are a success in the Holland community and have become a model for other communities to address energy efficiency. Between those successes and our continued dedication in all areas of the city, we achieved the certified gold status.

“To a Certified Gold Michigan Green Community is a high achievement. It means our residents, city staff, and elected officials find value in implementing sustainable practices in our community. Achieving the gold status also means we are all dedicated to maximizing livability in Holland, MI.” stated Dan Broersma, Sustainability Manager for the City of Holland.

The MGC program is open to all local governments in Michigan, at no cost. MGC is a sustainability networking, benchmarking and technical assistance program. It guides and supports communities in adapting to a changing climate, protecting infrastructure, improving the quality of life for residents and creating a more environmentally and economically sustainable future for the state of Michigan.
